Writing

"Procrastination is the thief of time, collar him". - was once said by Charles Dickens, but what could he meant by it? I believe he meant that procrastination is habit that person should be keeping in charge or ~~at~~ atleast strongly limit in himself since its stealing time of our life. I agree with Charles Dickens' opinion, procrastination is surely the most time-wasting habit person could have and tamaging too.

I want to prove my thoughts by example of main character Oblomov in romance story "Oblomov". He hesitates to do anything, leaving it by as it is, while he just lays around and eat. His avoidance of current responsibilities and task leads to an awful end. He lost the love of his love, job, home place in life and dies without achieving something in his life. He simply lived his grey life till it ended.

I know people who have tendency to post pone things they need to do for later in real life too. And that's myself. Sadly but I have learn what a negative thing procrastination is by my own experience. Few 7 years ago I managed to get in amazing class for programming "Tandem Lyceum" but I couldn't get to ~~that~~ the second year because I couldn't force myself to do lot of side tasks. They weren't big They were little but important ~~to~~ for passing to the next year. I failed I never have done them and failed. That was a tough lesson but very much needed.

In conclusion I want to say that procrastination is an incredibly damaging habit that has a really negative effect on ones life. That's why quote of Charles Dickens is not only a wise though but an advice to ~~who~~ not fall in hands of procrastination and by in control of your life.
